The Punishment Of My Servant David Cerullo

“Say unto David Cerullo, My servant: how dare you demand money from My people! I took you from the sheepfold, even David’s den, to feed My people, then you turned and used it for yourself to make money for yourself, playing Westerns. How dare you build an empire for self, and I shall take it away from you. Greed is endemic in your life, O wicked man of greed and vice, and I shall punish you eternally except you repent and return to the simple preaching of the Gospel on the streets, where you first started out. I did not call you to build up an empire of religion for self, but you did it yourself out of greed, forsaking Me, the Living God. For you love greed more than Me, and I will punish you eternally, unless you turn and give it all away, and serve Me as you first did with nothing in your hands to please Me. Your LORD has spoken.”
